MEMORANDUM FOR SEE DISTRIBUTION

SUBJECT: Fort Sill Safety Management

1. In June 2011, the Secretary of the Army stated the need to streamline installation management, improve effectiveness, and leverage economies of scale and shared services. In May 2008, the Vice Chief of Staff's DP-91 decision reinforced that safety is a commanders program and specified the senior commander directs the Garrison Safety Program and has the option to collocate his/her garrison safety personnel with mission safety personnel. On 6 March 2012, the TRADOC commander directed that where a TRADOC commander serves as senior commander, the mission and garrison safety offices will be collocated under the direct control of a senior safety director. The senior safety director will direct and synchronize garrison and mission safety programs and initiatives.
2. At Fort Sill the TRADOC mission safety director is designated as the Fort Sill senior safety director. The senior safety director is responsible for the provisions of full spectrum safety and occupational health services to the senior commander and the garrison commander. Non-TRADOC tenant units will retain separate safety organizations.
3. This organization will not reduce the safety services in support of garrison activities. It will ensure that I retain the resources necessary to ensure effective mission execution. As senior mission commander, I am ultimately responsible for decisions regarding the allocation of resources and where to accept risk.
